

Frenchie

Davis

Sexual Abolitionist

About Me

Frenchie Davis is an authority on Human Sexuality with a focus on the African-American community. Frenchie combines her love and expertise of social services, education, and pop-culture to Entertain, Educate and Enhance the emotional and sexiological intelligence of her audiences.

Frenchie, also coined as the Sexual Abolitionist, offers her audience a roadmap to understanding sexual shame, oppression and repression. In her work, she demonstrates how sexuality impacts everything we hold near and dear in our hearts from spirituality, sexual agency, sexuality development and diversity. She understands how imperative it is to dissect, evaluate and engender daily sex-positive interactions to create a sex-positive culture.

✉ Thesexualabolitionist@gmail.com

When you combine a Masters of Education in Human Sexuality, a Masters in Public Health with 25+ years of facilitation and speaker experience you are not only informed, but transformed. Frenchie works both nationally and internationally through workshops, lectures, blogging and TV appearances and shares her platform on her edge cutting talk shows, "The Sexual Abolitionist" and "What's Going On?" on WBAI 99.5 FM of New York City. She has taken the opportunity of being a Global Citizen to becoming a world student, studying and visiting over 25 countries and territories.

Frenchie served as board member for the Incarnation Institute of Sex and Faith (IISF). She collaborates with several organizations from 100 Black Men, DC Public Schools, Metro Teen AIDS, the National Council for Black Studies, The College of Black Studies at the College of Charleston, Michigan Health and Human Services HIV division and in 2015, was a research scholar at the Cuba Delegation for Race, Culture, Gender, and Sexuality. She was also a scholar at the Black Feminism Summer School and studied abroad in Cachoeira, Brazil for the Decolonization of Black Feminism program with renowned academic and activist Angela Davis. In fall of 2018 Frenchie is featured as a sexpert in the newly published book Untrue by New York Times Best Selling Author, Wednesday Martin Ph.D. Frenchie is widely known for serving the HIV, domestic violence and human trafficking communities and is the former Deputy Director for FAIR Girls an anti-human trafficking organization. Frenchie Davis is here to help us all reimagine sexuality and sexual health, freeing as many as she can as a sexual abolitionist.

Expertise

Retreats

Workshops

Public Speaking

Panel Discussions

INSTITUTE
OF
EMOTIONAL LITERACY